"The forest is a pillar in our culture and ecosystem. The trees attract the clouds that bring the rain, nurturing and growing our forest. Koa is the tallest, and Father of the forest. It protects and nurtures the understory, just as I want to shelter and feed my keiki.

My children must learn to see the world around them. They must understand the importance of keeping the forest healthy; a balance of plants and animals. This will help them become sustainable stewards and hunters of the aina, allowing them to provide for their future generations.

And with the story of this design we hope to continue to educate and bring awareness to the future generations.
